New Books Peculiarly Suitable for Holiday Gifts

MARK TWAIN'S LETTERS Arranged with Comment by Albert Bigelow Paine

Great as Mark Twain was in his books, he was never greater, never more whimsically delightful than in the letters which he wrote to his friends, known and unknown, in all parts of the world. This work should be in every library.
Two Volumes, Crown 8vo. Uniform with Trade Edition of Mark Twain's Works, $4.00 net.
Uniform with Library Edition of "Mark Twain: A Biography," $5.00 net.
Limited edition with paper labels and uncut edges, photogravure portrait, $10.00 net.

THE PRINCE AND THE PAUPER Holiday Edition by Mark Twain

This fascinating historical romance finds at last a worthy form. It was one of his books which Mark Twain himself liked the best. His publishers have chosen to mark their Centennial year by bringing out "The Prince and the Pauper" in this handsome edition—one with which they believe its author would have been delighted. It is a companion volume to "The Mysterious Stranger" in size and appearance.
Seven Illustrations in Full Color by Franklin Booth. Uniform with "The Mysterious Stranger." Crown 8vo. $2.50 net.

YEARS OF MY YOUTH New Illustrated Edition by William Dean Howells

This delightful autobiography gains a new value and interest from the illustrations which picture not only the early life of the writer but his surroundings in Ohio more than half a century ago. It makes its appropriate appearance when Mr. Howells is celebrating his eightieth anniversary year. Illustrated by Clifton Johnson. Crown 8vo. $2.50 net.

DIPLOMATIC DAYS by Edith O'Shaughnessy

Mrs. O'Shaughnessy is one of the few living writers who possess the rare gift of being able to put into words their vivid impressions of interesting people and picturesque scenes—as was proved by the phenomenal success of her earlier book, "A Diplomat's Wife in Mexico." Again in these pages she takes the reader into her intimate confidence as she tells of men and women who have played their parts in changing the course of the world history. Illustrated. $2.00 *net.

ROOKIE RHYMES By the Men of the 1st and 2nd Provisional Training Regiments, Plattsburg, N. Y., May 15—August 15, 1917.

"If you want to send the boy 'somewhere in France' or 'somewhere in America' a bit of nonsense that will liven his days, put in with the next package of cake and chocolates, 'Rookie Rhymes'." . . . —Philadelphia Evening Telegraph. 12mo. Illustrated. 75 cents.

GRIMM'S FAIRY TALES Louis Rhead Edition

A childhood without Grimm's fairy tales is as sad to contemplate as a boyhood without a jack-knife. Here is the ideal volume for children's shelves and laps and the pictures in line-drawings are the best Mr. Rhead has ever done. There are more than one hundred of them—Snow White, Red Riding Hood and other old favorites. The wrapper is in three colors.
Crown 8vo. Uniform with "Robinson Crusoe," etc. $1.50.

TEN AMERICAN GIRLS FROM HISTORY by Kate Dickinson Sweetser

Tales of heroism in many different fields of American women who have served their country or their age—Pocahontas is the heroine of Indian days; Dorothy Quincy of the Colonial period; Molly Pitcher of the Revolution; Virginia Murphy of pioneer days of transcontinental travel; Miss Van Lew, the famous spy of the Civil War; Ida Lewis, the lighthouse keeper; Clara Barton, the Red Cross Nurse, Clara Morris, the actress, Louisa M. Alcott, the writer, and Anna Dickinson, the orator. Illustrated. Octavo. $1.50 net.

THE BUBBLE BOOK The Harper-Columbia Book that Sings by Ralph Mayhew and Burges Johnson

The first of a unique series of books. The stories in verse by Ralph Mayhew and Burges Johnson are illustrated by records, enclosed between the pages of the book, which are to be taken out and played on the phonograph, so that the children can hear sung the stories of "Tom, Tom, the Piper's Son," "Jack and Jill," and "Mary Had a Little Lamb."
Illustrated in Color by Rhoda Chase. Three Columbia Records. $1.00 net.

A Truthful Apology for Having Too Much Business

As publishers of the Modern Library we must confess to an error in judgment. When we conceived the idea of publishing a series of hand bound, limp Croftleather modern "classics" to retail at 60 cents, we trusted to a moderate but steady growth of popularity, believing that the public would gradually accept the merits of the Modern Library. With this conviction in mind, the binding of the books was placed with a thoroughly efficient, but small, bindery. The great success of the Modern Library, which the Baker and Taylor Company say is the finest thing of its kind they have ever seen, and which has "caught on" in an unprecedentedly short time, first overtaxed the capacity of the bindery and then, after six weeks of inability to keep pace with our orders and those of its other customers this bindery was forced to discontinue business. On the day this bindery commenced to deliver to our new bindery flat sheets, folded sheets, folded and gathered sheets, sewed books, books with covers stamped and decorated but not yet encased—think of this confusion!—there had accumulated orders for immediate shipment of many thousands of copies of the Modern Library, some over four weeks old.

This is the plain truth about the delay you are experiencing and we regret it exceedingly from YOUR standpoint as well as ours. Through October and November thousands of dollars are being spent in the leading magazines and newspapers to advertise the Modern Library. It may appear that it has been poor policy to create a demand, a genuine enthusiasm for our fine little books, when temporarily this demand is merely causing you both bother and annoyance.

Do not overlook the fact that the benefit of advertising is a cumulative one. We now see daylight. The binding of the Modern Library has been placed with the Wolff bindery, one of the largest institutions of its kind in the world, and it will be only a matter of days now when we will be adequately equipped to handle properly and promptly the rapid growth of the Modern Library. May we ask that you be patient with us for the next few days?

All orders for the Modern Library will be shipped in full—no "shorts"—in time to meet the active mid-November book-buying demand. We feel confident that the demand for our books will be so great that you will be obliged to place generous re-orders almost as soon as you have received your November shipments. The Wolff bindery assures us that all orders, no matter how large, received after November 10th, will be shipped not later than two days after they are received by them.

To Facilitate Xmas Sales

To help your customers in selecting their Christmas books and to help you increase your sales we have selected from our list of thirty-five titles, three sets which make ideal and appropriate gifts for soldiers and civilians. The books, without jackets, are packed in artistic skytogen boxes, with two-color labels and without price marks on either boxes, labels or books. (Our prices and discounts to the trade remain the same, no additional charge being made for either the boxes or the extra labor involved.) These three Modern Library sets should prove your biggest Christmas sellers. We suggest that you immediately send us your orders for them. You may use this form as your order blank.

11 Patriotic Articles
25 stories and messages
10 Nature Articles
5 Big "How to Make" chapters and countless individual articles on everything in which boys are interested.

Never since this book was conceived has it contained more thrilling stories, more inspiring articles or more practical, helpful information. It is as large in contents as three ordinary books for boys. It is crowded with just the information boys are most anxious to have. The country's leading men have come forth generously with articles that can't be found elsewhere. The story tellers boys like best have outdone themselves in an effort to make this year's book the finest that has yet appeared. Many of the very things a Boy Scout wants to know are revealed by the men best qualified to tell. Every one of its pages has a message or a thrill.

Things To Do and Know

There are many pages describing things to do and how to do them. And not only are things of serious nature covered, but there are also chapters of amusing games, jokes, puzzles, etc. We mustn't be serious all the time, because even though we are living in serious times, we've got to know how to smile occasionally. Therefore, we have put loads of smile-provoking pages in the Boy Scouts Year Book, and they will go a long way toward keeping the boy's "pep" at a high pitch.

14 Fine Stories

There are fourteen splendid stories, some of them almost full book length. The authors are the very men whose stories you like best. There are tales of Scouts, football, baseball, school life, track and field athletics, sea stories, business stories—oh, we can't begin to tell you how many wonderful things this book contains. Naturalists, explorers, inventors, public officials, educational leaders, handicraft experts, humorists, fiction writers and others have all contributed to this great book. There's a year's reading in it for you, and the parents and boys know it. But, most important of all, it is packed with precisely what every patriotic boy should know—and this is the easiest, quickest and most interesting way of learning it.

Order Your Holiday Stock Now

Every year we are swamped with pleading letters from boys who waited until the last minute to order their copies of The Boy Scouts Year Book. They want their copies but find the booksellers out of stock. The only way to prevent this catastrophe—and it is a catastrophe to a boy not to be able to get the book he wants—is for the bookseller to prepare early to meet the demand. Consequently you are urged by the publisher to order your complete holiday stock now. The book is too large and complicated to be manufactured quickly, and deliveries cannot be guaranteed in the holiday rush.

Booksellers' Prize Winning Opinion on

MISTRESS ANNE By TEMPLE BAILEY

Now in the 25th thousand

MRS. S. H. KISER

Kiser's Bookstore, Leavenworth, Kansas

First Prize, $50.00

IT has been a joy to be among the first to meet all these delightful people in Temple Bailey's new book. You have indeed an exceptionally good story in this title, and it really is even better than "Contrary Mary." There is a roundness and a finish to the completed whole, a beauty in theme and diversity of characters not found in the author's former efforts.

Were I asked about the plot of "Mistress Anne" I should reply, "Plot? Why, there is no plot. This is a living, breathing story about living, breathing men and women. It needs no plot." "Yes, it has a heroine, maybe two or three of them, and a hero, too, though we might not all agree on who he is." "No, there is no villain, thank goodness. Villains are not necessary to hold our interest in "Mistress Anne." Though I must confess that I actually trembled at one place in the story for fear that Mr. Melodrama was going to creep in. But the door was shut in his face and we had no more caveman methods.

To my mind, a story is never so interesting as when there is a decided contrast in scenes and characters. And could there be any greater contrast than we see as we travel from New York, that wonder city, back and back to the wide stretch of country and the little lodges along the Chesapeake, where the Old Gentlemen fished and hunted? And the people in the book. Ah, there is one to suit most every taste. They all have something about them to admire, though you might love Anne for the "Me-Myself" part, and I might love the "Out-Side Person" of her. And again, they all have their faults, though you might scorn Geoffrey Fox for his cynicism, and I, for his temporary paganism.

The only characters in "Mistress Anne" which it seemed to me one could not rub elbows with at some turn or other in the road of life were "Marie Louise" and "Diogenes," and, of course, one might find a "Diogenes" if one hunted long enough. But Marie Louise? I liked her, but I couldn't conceive of her as a real flesh and blood girl. There are Nancys, Annes, Eves, and even Aunt Maudes, but are there any Marie Louises?

At once a gold thread in the story and an inspiration in the author are the letters between "Mistress Anne" and "Uncle Rodman,"—"Uncle Rodman," with his dreams and sunsets and his ever-recurring advice to Anne that "life is what we make it." Conclusively, the story is clean, contains no "problems" to be solved, and will be a delight to read for both old and young. Despite all the talk of the craving of the age for the sensational, I predict that dear Mistress Anne, with "her head in the stars and her feet always firmly on the ground," will find many friends in the world of fiction readers.

A Word from Dr. Watson: Colleague of Sherlock Holmes.

The friends of Mr. Sherlock Holmes will be glad to learn that he is still alive and well, though somewhat crippled by occasional attacks of rheumatism. He has, for many years, lived in a small farm upon the Downs, five miles from Eastbourne, where his time is divided between philosophy and agriculture. During this period of rest he has refused the most princely offers to take up various cases, having determined that his retirement was a permanent one. The approach of the German war caused him, however, to lay his remarkable combination of intellectual and practical activity at the disposal of the Government, with historical results which are recounted in HIS LAST BOW. Several previous experiences which have lain long in my portfolio have been added to HIS LAST BOW so as to complete the volume.

THE FORD PRICE MAINTENANCE CASE

THE decision in the case of Ford Motor Co. vs. Benjamin E. Boone, Inc., of which we gave the text in large part in last week's PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, like the recent hearings of the price maintenance question before the Federal Trade Commission, of which a full report is given in this week's issue, are interesting not so much for what each decided—indeed, in the latter case no decision of any sort was reached—as for the spirit shown in each case, the indication that general acceptance of the justice of price maintenance is growing. And this indication is significant because, after all, our laws and the interpretation of them are based, in the last analysis, upon preponderant intelligent public opinion upon the points at issue.

In the hearings before the Federal Trade Commisson, tho equal opportunity was given both sides to present statements the speakers in favor of price maintenance greatly outnumbered those opposed; and so far as one could judge, the general sentiment of the hearings was equally favorable.

So in the Ford case the most significant aspect of the decision seems to us, as was the case in that other northern Pacific Coast decision three years ago, Fisher Flouring Mills Co. vs. Swanson*, to be the strong sentiment in favor of the inherent justice of price maintenance, as such, which runs all thru the decision. When the court calls price cutting "internal guerilla competition," which entails for the public only "confusion and waste"; when it asks "what public interest would be subserved by striking down" the price maintenance contract in litigation; we cannot help feeling that, regardless of the exact technicalities of the decision, the price maintenance cause has made a distinct step forward.

Exactly what differentiates this case from the Macy-Victor case, in which a directly opposite decision was rendered in a court of co-ordinate jurisdiction is not entirely clear. As nearly as we can analyze the distinction from the incomplete texts of the decision which have been so far available the distinction seems to have been made on two grounds: one of legitimacy of agency, one of passage of title.

Boone claimed to the public to be a bona fide agent of the Ford Company when, as a matter of fact he was not; whereas, as we understand the Victor-Macy cases, this was not a point at issue therein.

Furthermore, in the Victor sales plan actual title to the victrolas was never passed, either to the retailer or to the ultimate consumer, but only a "license to use"—which the court, and we believe rightly, dismissed as a "subterfuge." In the Ford case title was passed to the retailer (and by him thereafter passed on to the consumer) if, and only when, he had sold the car in question at the established retail price. Until then ownership and control remained with the Ford Company. This ingenious form of sales contract and price maintenance the Court held legal and valid.

IT is hard to believe that any reputable publishing house would deliberately attempt to make changes in a contracted basis of royalty without first advising the author and securing the latter's assent. The publisher is undoubtedly being obliged to face rising costs all along the line; he is unfortunately being obliged to raise the prices of many books. But that he endeavors to evade paying the agreed royalty on the new list price we believe to be the rare exception—despite the editorial statement of the Bulletin of the Authors' League, which we reprint elsewhere in this issue.

SECOND-CLASS mail deliveries for some weeks past have been bringing to periodical publishers many complaints from subscribers nearby as well as from those at distant points. In these exceptional time delays in the post office department must be expected, tho often unexplainable. A spirit of patience must be exercised until things become normal again.

* PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, Feb. 14, 1914, p. 508.

PRICE MAINTENANCE HEARINGS BEFORE FEDERAL TRADE COMMISSION

THE long looked-forward-to hearings on the price maintenance question took place last week and, on adjournment Friday, on Wednesday of this week. Many witnesses were heard during the various sessions and much information of value was brought out and older points newly emphasized.

Altho the Commission itself, of course, gave no inkling of its impressions or proposed action—if, indeed, it proposes any sort of action—it was the general impression that the advocates of price maintenance had had the best of the argument, or at least that they had presented their side of the case much more completely than their opponents. In fact, the interest of those opposed to the price maintenance idea and in favor of unrestricted competition among retailers, was borne mainly by R. H. Macy & Co., Edmond E. Wise, the Macy attorney, presenting the main arguments as against the unrestricted power of producers to fix resale prices. Mr. Wise's statement consumed upward of two hours.

Commissioner Fort, acting chairman of the Federal Trade Commission, gave very close attention throughout the hearing to all speakers, and Commissioner Murdock was most active in cross-examining all speakers. Commissioner Colver also was interested in asking questions of witnesses. Unfortunately, late Wedneday morning, Mrs. Colver was knocked down by a street car and at first was thought to be seriously injured, which made it necessary for Commissioner Colver to leave the hearings. He did not return before adjournment. Commissioner Harris occasionally asked questions, but he was absent a good deal of the time, owing to the fact that another hearing in the interest of the government work which was on during some of the time, conflicted with his sitting with his fellow commissioners. Commissioner Davies, who was understood not to favor price maintenance, and has heretofore seemed in sympathy with the retailers' position, was not present during any of the hearing.

In his testimony before the Commission, Tuesday, Congressman Melville C. Kelly, of Pennsylvania, pointed out how the large mail order concerns and chain stores, thru price cutting, were driving many little retailers, in rural communities, out of business. Price cutting, he pointed out, cripples competition, whereas competition would flourish on a fair basis under price standardization.

During the session of Wednesday morning, Charles Wesley Dunn, representing Colgate & Co. and the Beechnut Packing Co., made a long and interesting statement in favor of price maintenance. He had prepared a pamphlet on the subject which he first read as establishing the principles involved, as he saw them, and then he spoke for some time informally, being asked many questions by the commissioners, especially by Commissioners Murdock and Colver.

A large number of the questions put to Mr. Dunn centered about the problem of whether a retailer, such as R. H. Macy & Co., in New York, who did not handle a certain manufacturer's line of goods made in another State, for example, Colgate & Co. in New Jersey, who might "slander" or "knock" such manufacturer's goods, could be regarded as guilty of unfair competition, and whether such conduct would come within the jurisdiction of the Federal Trade Commission. The questions of the commissioners displayed a strong desire to have Mr. Dunn express his opinion as to whether, since the manufacturer and the offending retailer were not on the same plane, there was actual competition between the two, and whether the interstate element entered such competition if there was any. Mr. Dunn held that it would be unfair competition within the meaning of the statute and that the retailer and manufacturer need not be on the same plane to constitute such an act unfair competition, because, he held, its tendency would be to restrict for the New Jersey manufacturer the natural free development of his market in New York.

Whether the commissioners were interested in this matter in a purely theoretical way, or whether it had specific bearing upon complaints which have been lodged with the Federal Trade Commission was in no way indicated, but it will be remembered that the commission called the hearing on price maintenance because it had received something like 50 complaints against manufacturers and retailers in which the principle of price maintenance was involved, and desired to have the opinions of all sides.

Jacob Gimbel, president of Gimbel Brothers, Philadelphia and Milwaukee, and vice-president of Gimbel Brothers, New York, appeared before the Commission Wednesday afternoon and delivered a short statement in favor of price maintenance. He was questioned by Commissioner Murdock in regard to the relative merits of unmarked and branded merchandise and, while unwilling to say that goods were inferior because unidentified, he expressed the belief that when a manufacturer establishes a brand and a standard of quality he works to keep his product up to that mark.

The book-trade was represented at the hearings by Mr. George Haven Putnam, who presented fully the aspects of price maintenance in which our own trade is so vitally concerned.

I. The question of the maintenance of price, said Mr. Putnam—we quote the briefed form of his statement—is to be considered with reference—

> 1st, to justice, to the claim of the producer for protection for the results of his labors.
> 2nd, as an incentive to further productions of value to the community.
> 3rd, for the direct service of buyers who are entitled to be assured of an adequate supply, effectively distributed for delivery where needed and intelligently presented, of articles whose value has been tested, is warranted by known names, and can, therefore, be accepted with confidence.

Mr. Putnam's statement proceeded:

II. We claim that such result can be secured only by permitting the producer (with proper restrictions against any risk of a monopoly in an entire group, or in a large portion of the group, of similar productions) to control, for standardized articles whose intrinsic value is assured thru the reputation of the maker and whose commercial value and good-will property have been built up thru the continued labor, efforts and advertising outlay of such maker, the prices at which they shall be sold.

III. Competition not destroyed or interfered with. The public retains the advantage of competition in selling price as well as in quality and special features, of different articles that have been produced to meet the same general requirement. This is as true for books as it is for pens, or cars, or bicycles.

IV. The buyer has secured thru his purchase the right to use in any manner he chooses the article itself. This purchase cannot in equity, and should not in law, give him the right to utilize, for his own purposes and to the detriment of the producer, the good will and reputation that have been built up for the article, by the efforts and expenditure of the producer. It would, for instance, be legitimate to sell below cost for general advertising purposes, that is to say for the purpose of inducing buyers to give consideration to other articles, a pen or a watch. It is not legitimate to utilize for the purposes of the seller and in a manner which brings detriment upon the manufacturer, the name connected with such pen or such watch. The desire of the underseller to utilize for his business advantage, irrespective of the detriment caused to the interests of such manufacturer, the property, which has been created in the reputation and good-will of the maker of a pen or of a watch, ought not to be legalized.

It has happened more than once that makers of important standardized articles have had occasion to turn down orders for considerable amounts of these articles coming from avowed price cutters. The manufacturer has been ready to fill those orders provided that the dealer would agree in selling the article at a cut price not to connect with it the name or trade-mark of the manufacturer. The dealer in refusing to purchase the article unless he could secure not only the right to sell the watch or the pen at a cut price, but also the privilege of connecting with the article the name of the manufacturer, gives evidence that it is his purpose not simply to serve his customers by giving them a good pen or a good watch, but to get the advantage, for its influence upon the sale of various unstandardized articles, of the reputation and good-will of the manufacturer of the pen or of the watch.

V. Further, an injury to the business of the maker of an article which has been proved of service to the public is an injury to the whole community. It discourages the production of further similar articles, and it also discourages investment, or outlay for the effective advertising of such articles, advertising which is of importance not only for the manufacturer but for the consumer. Price-cutting serves also to destroy the distributing machinery which has been organized, some times at great cost, for the purpose of presenting the article to the attention of the public and which renders, therefore, service to the public as well as to the manufacturer.

VI. The use by the under-seller is as a rule but temporary. When the mischief has been done, the article is discarded like a squeezed orange, for some other "best seller" which may better meet the attraction of the moment.

VII. With a few exceptions, such as patent medicines, the continued advertising of an article constitutes evidence of its assured value not only commercial but intrinsic. The advertising brings the article to the attention of the public and serves to retain this attention, but the continued buying must depend upon the word and approval given by Buyer A to possible buyers B, C, and D.

The inducement to advertising outlay, so important and so essential for the reaching of all sections of our big country, is, of course, of business importance for the advertising agents and for the periodicals; but it is also of direct advantage to the buying public itself. Such advertising outlay can, however, be incurred, or can be continued, only if the manufacturer, the advertiser, can be assured of maintaining his distributing machinery.

VIII. The question of "restraint of trade" is a proper and essential consideration for you gentlemen in authority. The practice of cutting prices, which, for the purpose of building up great selling monopolies, undermines the business of the smaller retailer, discourages advertising outlay, discourages investments in the production of articles of service for the community, and the creation and maintenance of organization for the distribution of those articles for the general public, the practice, namely, of cutting prices which has these results, constitutes most serious influence for the restriction, it is not unfair to say, for the destruction of trade.

IX. The application of the principle to books. A book may be considered as an extreme example of a standardized article. It has special conveniences for use in an advertisement of cut prices, because the price at which it has been published and at which the producer expects it to be sold is in evidence in catalogs and elsewhere. A book is sold below its published price for the purpose of tempting unwary buyers to shops or to counters where they can be induced to purchase articles which are not standardized and the value of which is very uncertain.

The importance of protecting the existence of the bookseller has been recognized in all civilized states excepting the United States. It is because the bookseller is able thruout Europe to assure his customer that there is but one price for the new publications that he is offering across the counter, that he is able to maintain his existence, that he can afford to maintain an intelligent selling machinery, that he can afford to be intelligent himself.

In every country but the United States, the bookstore is recognized as a factor in the liberal or higher education of the community. We may admit that the maintenance of bookselling machinery is essential for the livelihood of the author and of the publisher; and we have, therefore, a business interest in doing what may be possible to keep the bookseller from being driven out of existence. We emphasize, however, with you gentlemen that the maintenance of a well conducted series of bookshops thruout the country is important, is essential, for the larger interests, the higher welfare of the public.

X. We are told by the merchants who are cutting prices that as long as sale is secured for the books or other standardized articles, the producers and their business agents, authors and others, are not injured. The producers know better and their knowledge is based upon direct experience. The authors and their business representatives, the publishers, and the manufacturers of other standardized articles, have need not for a spasmodic push and then a dead slump, but for a continued and assured sale. The final test of the wisdom or of the mischief of any practice is, as said, the interest of the public at large.

We hold that this interest is secured, and can be secured, only thru the maintenance of such selling practice as the producers contend to be essential in order that they may be encouraged for further production, that they may be encouraged to do adequate advertising; and in order that the public may have available articles of assured value, thoroly distributed and intelligently presented; and that the public may be saved from the injury caused by the unwarranted use of articles of assured value for the purpose of inducing the buying of other articles of doubtful value.

A PLAIN TALK TO PRICE CUTTERS

Johnson & Johnson, the drug supply house, in a recent issue of their house organ, the Red Cross Messenger, have the following straight from the shoulder backbone-stiffener for would-be price-cutters.

"Let's get beneath the surface of this price-cutting question and have a man-to-man talk about it. You do not cut prices because you want to give away a portion of your legitimate profits. You do not sell below the standard price because you conscientiously think the article worth no more.

"Perhaps you have been giving away your rightful profits and charging the loss up as advertising expense. If you had spent a like sum of money in legitimate advertising channels this expense would have become an investment paying you rich returns.

"You are entitled to more than mere living wages from your business. You are entitled to compensation for the money you have invested, plus compensation for the risks you are taking of losing that money, plus compensation for the extra worry of running the business.

"How are you going to pay the war taxes and the increasing costs of doing business if you are wasting the opportunities at hand?

"The solution to your problem is easy. Give nobody a cut price."

"Immediately there is a chorus: 'How do you expect people to pay me full price when my competitor down the street will continue to sell at cut prices?'

"Forget your competitor. Run your own business and leave your competitor to solve his own problems. He is not going to continue throwing away his good money when he sees you earning extra profits on every sale you make.

"It might stiffen you up a bit if you knew that only 4.2 per cent of all of the 16,496 failures in the business world of the United States last year was due to competition. The authority for this statement is Bradstreet's 'Why Men Fail.'

"It may enhearten you to know what the Journal of Retail Druggists thinks of competition. It says:

"Are you keeping your prices down because you are shivering in gooseflesh lest you run ahead of a competitor? Did it ever occur to you that the man who has the least competition is the one whose prices are highest? All the rotten competition is in the cheap circles of business. Get up where big prices obtain. Charge top-notch prices, and leave competition behind."

"For years the public has been persistently taught that it should pay seventy-nine cents for a dollar article and thirty-nine cents for a fifty-cent article. Now it must be made to realize the fallacy of such teaching. War conditions not only give you the opportunity to demand full prices, but make it imperative that you do so.

"How are your customers going to regard it?

"What would they think of a physician who made a bid for practice by cutting his $2 consultation fee to $1.69?

"In New York City a cut-rate taxi company died in infancy, in spite of the general howl against exorbitant taxi rates, simply because people disliked to be seen riding in a cut-rate vehicle.

"If a man should offer you postage stamps at less than face value your suspicions would be aroused.

"The new conditions created by the war are hastening the time when the customer will look with suspicion upon the store which offers standard goods below established price.

"You often have had to call a customer back to get his change when he laid a quarter on the counter for a twenty-five-cent article. He wasn't looking for a cut price.

EDITORS OF BUSINESS PAPERS ARE FORMING A NATIONAL ORGANIZATION

SOME time ago the editors of the various class and trade papers represented in the New York Business Publishers' Association formed an Editorial Conference by which, particularly at luncheon meetings, topics of national importance, touching the clientele of all or a majority of business papers, were to be considered.

It was presently seen that here, especially in war time, was opportunity for a national educational work of broad scope and great importance. The subject was taken up at a meeting of the Associated Business Papers, Inc., in Chicago, early in October, and a special committee appointed to consider the desirability of having an Executive Committee on this subject with national functions.

This special committee, of which Samuel O. Dunn, editor of the Railway Age-Gazette, was chairman, adopted a report which recommended as follows:

"1. There should be created an executive committee of five editors to guide the deliberations and the work of the editors of business papers on national co-operative lines. We recommend that the executive committee be appointed by the New York editorial conference of the business press. We make this recommendation because we believe that the executive committee should be appointed at once and the New York conference is the only one now organized.

"2. We recommend that editorial conferences, similar to that in New York be formed by the business papers in Chicago, Philadelphia, Boston, St. Louis, Minneapolis, St. Paul and in such other cities as may have business papers which desire to form them.

"3. We recommend that an association for the interchange of information and views be formed by the representatives of the business press in Washington, D. C., and that the executive committee take the steps necessary to cause the formation of such an association.

"4. We recommend that the executive committee create and appoint such standing or temporary committees representing the editorial conferences in the various cities as the executive committee may deem desirable in order to make investigations and recommendations regarding such subjects as may be of interest to the editors of business papers.

"We refrain from recommending the organization of a single national editorial conference because we believe that when editorial conferences are formed in the various large cities they will naturally interchange views and suggestions at brief intervals which will be of value to all concerned, and that with an executive committee to correlate the activities of the various local conferences and to call national conferences when they seem to be necessary, all needed co-operation between the business papers will be brought about."

The report of this committee was adopted by the New York Editorial Conference at its luncheon meeting last Tuesday.

POST OFFICE DEFINES RESTRICTIONS ON PRESS

THE scope of the Espionage and Trading-with-the-Enemy acts, in so far as they affect the postal service, and how they are to be enforced against disloyal publications, is explained at length in a statement to publishers made public yesterday by Albert S. Burleson, Postmaster-General.

These laws were made necessary, Mr. Burleson said, by national propaganda, intended in every possible way to interfere with the successful prosecution of the war. He added that no publisher who was at heart loyal to his country should feel any apprehension of embarrassment or inconvenience from their administration.

"No one connected with the Government," said the letter, "from the President down, seeks by reason of these laws to avoid criticism, or even attack, but no publication containing matter which comes within the prohibition of the law will be permitted to circulate."

As it is interpreted by the Post-Office Department, the acts make it unlawful for any person, firm, corporation, or association to mail, or to transport, or carry, or otherwise publish or distribute during the war printed or other matter:

(1) Advocating or urging treason, insurrection, or forcible resistance to any law of the United States.

(2) Conveying false reports or false statements intended to interfere with the operation or success of the military or naval forces of the United States, or to promote the success of its enemies.

(3) Intended to cause insubordination, disloyalty, mutiny, or refusal of duty in the military or naval forces of the United States.

(4) Intended to obstruct the recruiting or enlistment service of the United States, to the injury of the services of the United States.

(5) The circulation or publication of which involves the violation of any of the numerous other criminal provisions of the Espionage act, but which are not of special interest to publishers.

(6) Printed in a foreign language containing any news item, editorial, or other printed matter respecting the Government of the United States, or of any nation engaged in the present war, its policies, international relations, the state or conduct of war, or any matter relating hereto, unless the publisher or distributer thereof, on or before offering the same for mailing, or in any manner distributing it to the public, has filed with the postmaster at the place of publication a true, complete translation of the article.

(7) Referred to in the preceding paragraph for which publishers have been granted a permit to circulate, free of restrictions named therein, but which does not bear at the head thereof in the English language the fact that such a permit has been granted.

UNFAIR REDUCTIONS OF ROYALTIES

THE Current Bulletin of the Authors' League of America has some pungent and pertinent things to say regarding the action of those publishers who make the high cost of publishing the excuse for tampering with royalty arrangements.

One of the members of the League, it says, has a contract with a well-known publishing house that provides among other things that

"the said .....Publishing Company hereby undertakes and agrees to pay on each of the four (4) books to the said..... ..... a royalty of ten per cent. (10%) of the retail price for each copy of the said book sold by it until ten thousand (10,000) copies have been sold, and to pay thereafter to the said .....fifteen per cent. (15%) of the retail price for each copy sold."

A recent royalty statement carried an item of some 500 copies of one of the books sold to reading circles at a reduced price. The royalty on these copies was calculated at ten per cent. of this reduced wholesale price. A prompt protest on the part of the author brought the additional interesting information that the regular retail price of the book had been raised from $1.25 to $1.35. But the ten per cent. royalty on books sold at retail was being paid on the original price! The only explanation of this extraordinary and illegal procedure was the statement that

"In view, however, of the increased cost of paper, printing and binding, we do not make as much profit as formerly."

The publisher further wrote:

"If you insist upon our paying the royalty of ten per cent. on even our old retail price of $1.25 on books sold to the Ohio or other Reading Circles, we shall, in future, be obliged to decline their business. To secure their orders, it is necessary for us to furnish them books at from fifteen to twenty-five per cent. below the wholesale trade price.

"If we should continue to sell your books to the Reading Circles, it should mean, as in the present instance, an increasing amount of royalty, but there is not likely to be much gain otherwise."

In other words a threat. In other words, if the author would not accept the unauthorized cuts in royalty, the publisher would see to it that less copies were sold, thus reducing the author's income.

Now it may be conceded that increased cost of doing business would necessitate an increased retail price and that additional discounts to reading circles would unduly decrease a publisher's profits, unless the author would accept a lower royalty.

In neither case, however, would the actions of the company be justified. The contract unequivocally states that the royalty shall be ten per cent. of the retail price on each copy sold. If the publisher found a reduction necessary to enable him to deal with reading circles, why did he not first submit the proposal for the author's approval? Also, as the author pointed out in writing to the publisher, the reductions to the reading circles were approximately sixteen and two-thirds per cent. and ten per cent. below the regular wholesale price, whereas the royalty reductions were forty-four and two-thirds per cent. and forty per cent.

Concerning the increased retail price, the author wrote:

"The contract which you set aside with no explanation until explanation was demanded consists of terms proposed by the ..... Publishing Company, and should have contained every item mentioned in your letter bearing on any changes in the royalty. Instead, the contract gives me a flat ten per cent. on 'each and every copy sold.' By raising the retail price to $1.35 and not raising my royalty to $1.35, you have not only broken the contract, but have cleared the advanced cost of material and labor to yourself, ignoring the fact that my own expenses in paper, typing, etc., have advanced in proportion to the amount of business I do."

Another similar, but more general case, was reported and discussed at a recent meeting of the Executive Committee. It raises the same question which, this year or next, may be put to the author of any book. It is well to be prepared for it.

In this case, as before, statements were sent to the author with royalties figured upon the original retail price of his book, altho the retail price (without his knowledge) had been advanced. The statement was submitted without first consulting the author, and his consent to the new arrangement (which of course diminished the percentage of his royalty) was not requested before payments were made.

Quotations from this publisher's letters will show his conception of what is "fair." He says:

"We believe our authors are willing in these trying circumstances to accept the same royalty per copy as heretofore."

and gives, as an argument, the following:

"Other publishers have made similiar requests and other authors have seen the fairness of granting them."

A very good argument, if the facts are true. But the author, asking for the names of such publishers and consenting authors, received the following reply:

"Our information concerning certain publishers and authors was authoritative: beyond question. It was also confidential, and it would not be proper for us to mention names."

Can anyone fail to regard this reply as disingenuous?

As a hasty canvass of the Committee and elsewhere had shown that no other well-known author had received, much less consented, to such a diminution of royalty percentage and, moreover, as this unfairness would in the nature of the case be visited mainly upon authors too inexperienced or too timid to refuse to consent to the violation of their contracts, the Committee has decided to investigate the subject and endeavor to discover what other publishers have so acted.

The Committee therefore urges members, concludes the Bulletin, in all cases where their contracts provide for a percentage of the retail price, to insist on the payment of full royalty on such retail price, whether it be the original price at which the book was published or one increased to meet the new conditions imposed by the war.

JUNIOR BOOK REVIEW QUARTERLY TO BE PUBLISHED IN BOSTON

CLOSE on the heels of the new Chicago periodical to publish the literary effusions of young writers under twenty-one previously rejected by the "regular" magazines comes the announcement of a new literary quarterly to be edited by and published for the children of Boston. Where but in the home of Back Bay culture would such a venture be attempted! Yet Boston is supporting the most successful and almost the only book-shop for boys and girls in the country and where could such a juvenile literary magazine be attempted with better prospects of success?

In fact the new periodical, while in no sense a house organ of the Book-shop for Boys and Girls on Boylston Street is being launched under the general direction of this shop. Miss Mahony has had little difficulty in attracting very small children—up to twelve years—to her shop but the children between twelve and eighteen have been a knotty problem. Finally came the idea of a regular magazine to which the children themselves should contribute reviews of the various new juveniles over their signatures. The largest private and public schools in and around Boston are heartily in favor of the venture and the teachers may even work out some method by which membership on the editorial staff will be a matter of competition thruout the school system. Teachers favor the review as directly in line with the new movement toward vocational training in primary schools.

Tho the exact form and even the exact name of the periodical are still somewhat uncertain it will probably be the "flat" size, some sixteen pages, and have an initial circulation of a thousand copies. The contents will probably be divided into departments with a boy or girl editor and assistants in charge of each department. It will carry a limited amount of book advertising.

DOUBLEDAY, PAGE MAKES 100% RECORD ON LIBERTY LOAN

THE following list shows the number of people in each department who participated in the Second Liberty Loan, representing every member of Doubleday, Page & Co.'s staff.

This list excludes 47 men who have joined the colors, an honor roll of which they are very proud. With each of these soldiers and sailors they will keep in close touch, and they will receive Christmas presents purchased by their fellow-workers, who have already subscribed $462 for this purpose.

The amount of bonds purchased was $56,350; 510 people took nearly $40,000 of the first Liberty Loan.

The staff made the task of collecting these subscriptions easy and pleasant because of the cheerful and prompt way in which they entered into the spirit of the loan. The first canvas was begun in earnest Tuesday morning, October 23rd, and all were "present and accounted for" by Friday afternoon, October 26th, a full day before the subscriptions closed. The total amount taken by the Doubleday, Page folks and the house for both loans aggregates about $254,000.

NEW YORK WOMEN BOOKSELLERS FORM A LEAGUE

AN informal but enthusiastic meeting attended by a number of women directly engaged in various branches of the book-trade of New York, was held at Sherwood's Book Store on John Street on Monday evening, October 29.

After a hearty dinner at the Dutch Tavern, ways and means were discussed looking toward the organizing of a social league for the women of the trade, somewhat similar in form and government to the Booksellers' League of New York City. The plan was heartily endorsed by all present.

Subsequent to the business of the evening, general trade topics were discussed and the meeting adjourned to meet again on Tuesday evening, November 13, at 8 p. m., at The Sunwise Turn Book Shop, No. 2 East 31st Street, New York, at which time a permanent organization will be effected. A cordial invitation is extended to all women engaged in every branch of the trade to be present, and assist in founding the first League of Woman Booksellers in America.

PHILADELPHIA "NORTH AMERICAN" CO-OPERATES WITH BOOKSELLERS

THE Philadelphia North American is co-operating with the booksellers of that city in a very practical way in their "books for soldiers" campaign.

The American has on display—but not, as we understand it, for sale at its offices a careful selection of new books suitable for soldiers reading. It has also available competent aid in making definite selections and facilities for forwarding any books bought.

The various Philadelphia booksellers, who are co-operating with the North American's Book Bureau, have themselves suitable "books for soldiers" displays, and thus are linking themselves up with the publicity which the whole movement is getting there. The North American also supplies suitable "stickers" for pasting in books bought.

Not content with a reading notice the North American is devoting full page advertising space to the campaign, a sample of which we reproduce on the opposite page.

COPYRIGHT NOTES

PURPOSE OF AUTHOR IN SECURING COPYRIGHT

A minor technicality of copyright pleading was ruled on in the case of Hubbell et al v. Royal Pastime Amusement Co. (242 F. R. 1002-3) in equity before the U. S. District Court S. D. N. Y. It was held that a bill to dismiss was not defective because it failed to allege that the copyrighted material, in this case musical compositions, was written "for the purpose of public performance for profit," although this phrase is the language of the statute. The Court held that:

"When the composer composes his composition with an unlimited copyright notice, it may fairly be inferred that he had written the work for the purpose of securing all the rights attainable under the Copyright Act, including the exclusive right publicly to perform it for profit."

LICENSE TO USE PART OF A COPYRIGHTED WORK MAY BE GRANTED, AND ILLICIT USE OF ANOTHER PART IS AN INFRINGEMENT

In the case of Standard Music Roll Company v. F. A. Mills, Inc., (241 F. R. 360-3) in the Circuit Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit (N. J.) it was held that, inasmuch as a copyright protects all the copyrightable component parts of a work, a musical composition is protected both as to words and music; and if a license to use but one is granted the use of the other by the licensee is an infringement of copyright.

The Mills Company licensed the Standard Company "to use the copyrighted musical composition ("Waiting for the Robert E. Lee") in the manufacture of its sound records in any form whatsoever." The Standard Company manufactured and sold perforated music rolls: its infringement lay in the fact that it had printed the words on a slip of paper which, without additional charge, it had inserted in its rolls.

The Court held that the meaning of the above quoted phrase in the license is clear, that the license was one restricted to "reproducing the said musical work mechanically.

The Standard Company brought forward a defense based on this technicality, which was overruled: that, in licensing another firm, the Vocalstyle Company, similar sound reproduction rights the Mills Company had neglected to file the notice of license required by section I (e) of the Copyright Law. It was held that, whereas failure to file such a notice might well be a complete defense to a suit for infringement of the musical coypright, it had no bearing upon the question of infringement of the words.

COPYRIGHTED ADVERTISING CUT NOT A TRADE MARK

In the case of B. V. D. Company v. Golden Rule, Inc., (242 F. R. 929-30) in the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals for the Eighth Circuit (Minn.) it was held that a copyrighted cut used in advertising matter, even though entered in the Patent Office rather than with the Librarian of Congress, was not a trademark and could be, as a copyrighted product, protected by the proprietor against infringement.

The suit was brought by the B. V. D. Company against the Golden Rule, Incorporated, for infringement of a copyrighted print of the figure of a young man clad in a suit of underwear. The plaintiff is a manufacturer in New York of a particular class of underwear, which it sells to the jobbing trade. The print was copyrighted by registration in the Patent Office (Act June 18, 1874, c. 301, § 3, 18 Stat. 78) and not with the Librarian of Congress or Commissioner of Copyrights, as required in the case of "pictorial illustrations or works connected with the fine arts." The plaintiff used it in advertising its manufactured goods. The defendant operates a retail department store in St. Paul, Minn. Having bought a quantity of the "B. V. D." underwear made by plaintiff, it reproduced plaintiff's print without its permission in advertising the goods for sale in the daily newspapers, and in doing so omitted the copyright notice from the reproduction. The trial court held that the validity of the copyright was not put in issue.

We think the court was right in holding that the validity of the copyright was not in issue; and, as the plaintiff still continues before us its insistence upon that condition of the case, we will so confine our consideration of it. In other words, we will take the plaintiff's print as an admitted valid copyright. The defendant argues that the rules of trade-mark, as expressed in Coca Cola Co. v. Bennett (D. C.) 225, Fed. 429, are applicable, and that, as it restricted its use of the print to advertising the goods manufactured by plaintiff, the latter had no cause for complaint—was in fact benefited, not damaged. But, as above indicated, the print was registered in the Patent Office as a copyright, not as a trade-mark. So far as the pleadings show, it was designed for and used in detached advertising. We need not consider what the rights of the parties might have been, had the plaintiff used the print as a trade-mark by attaching or weaving reproductions of it into the garments it manufactured, put upon the market, and sold. That is not involved in the case, and we put it aside. The plaintiff had the right to advertise its goods in its own way, and in the use of its copyrighted print for that purpose it had the exclusive right. The defendant was at liberty to advertise the underwear it bought and owned by other prints and illustrations, but not to copy or reproduce a copyright of the plaintiff.

The decree is affirmed.

POSTAL NOTES

A NEW parcel-post convention between the United States and Mexico became effective Nov. 1, 1917. Under the new convention, the weight limit has been raised from 11 to 20 pounds; the sender of a registered parcel is entitled in case of loss, damage or rifling thereof, to an indemnity equal to the amount of the actual loss incurred, but not exceeding the equivalent of 50 francs; and the graduated charges of 5 cents for the first pound and 1 cent per additional weight of 4 ounces collectible from the addressee, have been eliminated. The charges now to be collected will be the usual delivery fee of 5 cents per parcel whatever its weight.

OBITUARY NOTES

JAMES L. PERKINS, who died suddenly in Brooklyn on October 28th, was manager of the National Military Publishing Co., at 1919 Broadway, New York. For many years he was associated with a number of firms in bookselling and publishing. From Jordan Marsh & Co.'s book department he went with A. L. Burt as salesman and later started the Perkins Book Co., for marketing special editions of standard books. Afterward he joined with J. D. Morris & Co., Philadelphia, in the subscription book line and in time associated himself with Collier's Weekly in their book department. From Collier's he went to Hearst's International Library Co. as manager for a brief period. During the past summer he started publishing military books. He was fifty-five years old and is survived by his wife, a son and two daughters.

THE SYMPATHY of the entire trade goes out to Walter S. Lewis of Philadelphia in the loss of his wife who died on October 22 after a lingering illness of seven months. Mr. and Mrs. Lewis had been married for twenty-five years. Many members of the trade who have known the hospitality of the Lewis home at one time or another in the past feel the death of Mrs. Lewis as a personal loss.

Buy Books for Soldiers and Sailors

Out of all the welter of advice provoked by America's participation in the world-wide war against Prussianism and murder-kultur this imperative sentence contains more of humanity, more of wisdom and more of moral uplift than any single admonition it is possible for you to heed.

THIS morning in France, in Flanders, in England, on the high seas, and in cantonments dotting these United States, there are close upon two millions of virile, active, thoroughly alive men between the ages of 18 and 31

And men, particularly young men, can stand up and be shot, can kill or be killed, can fight or brave the horrors of Topher's own door, all with enthusiasm and a mood of contentment. But word comes to us direct from trench, camp and ship's deck that they cannot withstand the INTERMINABLE, INSUPPORTABLE HOURS OF MERELY WAITING.

What is the solution of this formidable problem now confronting our military leaders and giving them gravest concern?

Books, BOOKS, More Books, AND STILL MORE BOOKS

Thousands of readers of THE NORTH AMERICAN today are willing to perform this patriotic duty—they need only to be told of its pressing necessity.

Thousands of additional North American readers have been ready and anxious to do it, but have hesitated, fearing improper transmission, doubting their book message would reach its eager recipient.

They have awaited just such an opportunity as THE NORTH AMERICAN now presents to its readers, working on the lines laid down by proper military authorities, and in conjunction with the bookstores of Philadelphia. It is a plan which will simplify and make easy through concrete concerted action the important, the vital business of getting books to our men in the service and getting them there quickly.

Where to Get the Books and How to Send Them

On this page you will find printed a facsimile of a sticker which THE NORTH AMERICAN has supplied to every bookseller in Philadelphia. If you live at a distance, send it through the mails to your favorite Philadelphia bookstore. If you have no particular store in mind, make a selection from the book dealers and publishers whose advertisements appear in the book columns of THE NORTH AMERICAN and send your check or money order for the amount you wish to invest in books for our soldiers and sailors to the store you choose. They will understand that you want your greeting to go in every book you buy, and they will see that it goes where you want it sent without delay.

Books Exactly Suited to the Soldiers' Needs Are on Display at the Bookstores and at THE NORTH AMERICAN Book Bureau

—YOU WILL find shown in the windows or stocks of all Philadelphia booksellers and at THE NORTH AMERICAN Book Bureau (First Floor) just the kind of books most desired by our soldiers, sailors and selected men.

FROM NOW UNTIL THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 15

...Every aid will be given you by the publishers and booksellers and THE NORTH AMERICAN in making your selections.

NOTE.—THE NORTH AMERICAN Book Bureau has not confined itself to merely a list of books, but the books themselves are here for selection, having been sent by the booksellers, so that you may see exactly what kind of a book you are sending.

But whatever else you do, buy books for the boys in the service!

They are fighting or are ready to fight for you. Do something for them. And remember, you cannot give too much to save these clean-minded, clean-limbed young men of ours from themselves and from that greatest of dual curses, idle hands coupled with idle minds.

(Whether you buy one book or a thousand, this sticker will go on top-by-best of each one, signed with your name.)

PERIODICAL NOTES

WITH THE OCTOBER number the A. L. A. Booklist became simply The Booklist.

PATIENCE WORTH now has a magazine all her own, Patience Worth's Magazine, v. 1, no. 1, of which appeared in August from 5711 Cates Ave., St. Louis.

THE Color Trade Journal, monthly at $5 a year, began publication in August from 200 Fifth Ave., New York City.

THE CHICAGO HOME LIFE MAGAZINE COMPANY has been incorporated with $100,000 capital stock by Marion Luce, Anna Thustrup and N. C. Agard.

A PARIS OFFICE for the centralization of the work of the European staff of Leslie's Weekly will be opened in the near future with Lucian Swift Kirtland in charge.

THE NEW OWNERS of Pearson's Magazine, New York, have incorporated in Wilmington, Del., under the name of Pearson's Magazine, Inc., with stated capital of $175,000.

MARK A. SELSOR, formerly advertising manager of Review of Reviews and Scientific American, is now Western manager of Ruggles & Brainard, Inc., of New York, with his office in Chicago.

JUDGING from statistics in the recently issued edition for 1917 of the "Handbook of German Newspapers," the newspapers of the country are suffering rather heavily. The number of dailies has fallen since the previous year from $3500 to 2938, the remainder suspending publication permanently or for the duration of the war. The daily circulation of the papers seems to be maintained.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES

THE H. W. WILSON COMPANY have moved into their new home 958-64 University Ave., New York City.

THE PAGE COMPANY, its officers and stockholders, subscribed $90,000 to the Second Liberty Loan.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS announce that Alan Seeger's "Poems" are in their seventh edition and his diary in its second edition.

RECENT TITLES in the Military Publishing Co.'s list of text-books are "Quartermaster's Manual" and "Gunnery and Explosives for Artillery Officers."

ARTHUR SPURGEON, managing director of the Cassell publishing house, London, has been appointed a member of the Royal Commission on Paper and Papermaking Materials.

OWING to the shortage of gold, there is a prohibition of the use of gold-leaf for bookbinding purposes, and the majority of the makers have suspended manufacture.

TEMPLE BAILEY, pleasantly known by her "Contrary Mary," and "Mistress Anne," has written a book of non-fiction, "Adventures in Girlhood," listed among the Penn Publishing Co.'s holiday announcements. It discusses for young women the questions of happiness, friends, lovers, work and play.

"MISSING" just published by Dodd, Mead & Co., is Mrs. Humphry Ward's first novel of the war. It is a tale not of the brutal horrors of the battlefield but of the less ghastly and possibly as intense suffering of those left behind. The novel, the plot of which is plainly indicated by the title, gives some interesting glimpses of England at war.

THE Committee on Public Information at Washington are asking all writers and publishers to submit articles or books on aviation, experiments in signalling, and all experiments in war material to the Committee for reading before publication. Only in this way can important military information be protected.

THE LITTLE THEATRES are to have a book all to themselves. The Holts are publishing this week Constance D'Arcy Mackay's "The Little Theatre in the United States." There are descriptions of each one of the sixty with its history, policy, achievement, repertoire, as well as its scenic, lighting and decorative effects, and there are over twenty illustrations, largely from photographs.

OLIVER HERFORD has written a number of toasts which have been illustrated by himself and John Cecil Clay, and will be published in book form by Mitchell Kennerley. The title of the volume will be "Happy Days." It has required seven printings to give the colors used by the artists.

CAN YOU TELL whether a letter is written by a left or right handed person? The detectives in Roman Doubleday's "The Green Tree Mystery," recently published by D. Appleton & Co., could and so the mystery of the murder of the richest and most hated man in the dull little town of Greenville was solved. Handwriting experts will bear witness that such a dénouement is scientifically possible.

IT IS SAID that there are ten million bachelors with earning capacity sufficient to provide for two in this country. To these Anna Steese Richardson addresses her compilation entitled "Why Not Marry?" just published by the Bobbs-Merrill Co. The short talks which make up the book are distinctly "pro" in trend. In addition to encouragement to young men, they include wholesome counsel to the young women who are supposed to be the stumbling blocks to matrimony.

MRS. JESSIE AMES MARSHALL, 15 State St., Boston, will publish on November 5 "The Private and Official Correspondence of Gen. Benjamin F. Butler," in five octavo volumes. This work tells the story of the important episodes of the Civil War period with which General Butler was vitally connected by means of letters, orders and despatches passing between General Butler and Lincoln, the Departments of State, War and Treasury, and various distinguished individuals.

ACCORDING TO William Stanley Braithwaite, who edits this year the fifth annual volume in his series of anthologies of magazine verse, the poetical accomplishment of 1917 has been from every point of view remarkable. The "Anthology of Magazine Verse for 1917" which Small, Maynard & Co. is publishing this month will therefore be of exceptional interest. Besides an introduction on the poetry of the year, and the best magazine verse, the volume contains important lists of books and articles on poetry and a valuable index.

"QUICK! WATSON, THE NEEDLE!" has even run into comic papers and cartoons, so great has been the fame of Conan Doyle's Sherlock Holmes. And now Doran is publishing the last appearance of this arch-enemy to crime and mystery in "His Last Bow," in which the low-chuckling Holmes and the obligingly ingenuous Dr. Watson are about to disclose the mysteries of the cardboard box containing two human ears, the Voodoo worshipper in England and an aptly to date German secret service plotter.

IN "THE HEART OF O SONO SAN" recently published by the Frederick A. Stokes Co., Elizabeth Cooper has drawn a picture of the Japanese woman, whose life story might be briefly told in the three words: obedience, submission and renunciation. In the unfolding of O Sono San's romance, she has revealed the Japan which the tourist cannot know, the charm of its homes and the simplicity of its people. The book is illustrated with many unusual and beautiful reproductions from photographs.

OTHER COUNTRIES ARE having their paper troubles. A royal order prohibits the exportation from Spain of all kinds of paper and board, with the exception of hand-made paper, paper cut into sheets for envelopes and writing-paper, cardboard shaped into boxes and other articles, straw packing paper and cigarette paper. The export embargo includes paper clippings, waste paper, rags, etc. The newspapers of Sweden have brought about an arrangement by which $60.75 per ton is to be paid for news-paper as a maximum price.

STEPHEN GRAHAM, who has identified himself to such an extent with Russia, has ventured into a new field. His first essay in the realm of fiction, "The Priest of the Ideal," uses England entirely as a background, especially its cathedral towns. The story, which presents as its leading figure a wandering mystic who preaches religious idealism and devotion to early church traditions, is modern in time and speech tho it suggests in many ways the old mystery play. The novel was recently published by the Macmillan Co.

"FIRST CALL," by Arthur Guy Empey, author of "Over the Top," will be issued about the middle of November. It tells the new soldier what confronts him in the training camp, on the transports, in England, in the training camps in France, and finally in the trenches themselves. There is a wonderful chapter for mothers and, best of all, there are so many things that other books have overlooked that will save the lives of our boys in France. "Over the Top" ran thru sixteen editions of 143,000 copies in four months, and this new book "First Call" is said to be written in the same vivid way.

JUST NOW when the necessity for the chemical independence of this country is so great comes along a book intended to make the unscientific reader see with the chemist's eye. "Everyman's Chemistry" published this week by Harper & Brothers in their Modern Science Series gives much interesting information about the products which enter into every one's daily life, such as air, water, glass, iron, steel, gas, coal, dyes, candies, paper, etc. It is not primarily a text-book and will not help students to pass examinations, but it will arouse interest in a subject which many consider dull.

OVER the front door of the Houghton Mifflin Company publishing offices on historic Park Street in Boston will shortly wave a "Service Flag" which will have thirty stars, each one of which represents a man with the colors. The list is headed by Captain Benjamin H. Ticknor, until his entering the service, Sales Manager of the Company, who is now abroad with his regiment. Thirteen men are in the Infantry and Artillery regiments of the Army; seven in the Navy; four in the new National Army; three in the Medical Corps, one in the Ambulance Corps of the University of Chicago, and one man in the Aero Squadron.

MISS MARCELLA BURNS of Marshall Field & Co., Chicago, is now under waiting orders for service in France as a member of the 13th Hospital Unit of which the well-known Dr. Dean Lewis of Chicago is the head. Notwithstanding her weighty responsibilities in the conduct of the great book department at Marshall Field's, she has, during the past eight months, been preparing for her new venture by studying French and stenography and typewriting. When asked what she expected to do "over there," she modestly replied she expected to be "a good soldier." Her position as manager of the book department will be held open until her return; meanwhile it will be administered by several capable and well-trained assistants.

VERY OPPORTUNELY appears this week under the imprint of Houghton Mifflin the latest of Lucy Fitch Perkins' "twin" stories, "The Belgian Twins." It is the story of a Belgian brother and sister separated from their parents at the time of the German invasion and happily reunited later. The story is told without harrowing details or incidents unsuitable for children. Mrs. Perkins has illustrated the book in the same pleasing style which has become familiar in her other portrayals of child life in foreign lands. The Commission for Relief in Belgium believes that this book will do much to stimulate interest in the cause of these stricken people.

"ONCE UPON A TIME" begins a very attractive little book for very little folks, written by a person with the suggestive name of Vera Nyce. It goes on to tell "The Adventures of the Greyfur Family." Perhaps if you were seven, you would guess that the Greyfurs are a very interesting family of mice with ambitions for a life a little more exciting than that of ordinary mousedom. The colored pictures of these mousies at their various activities ought to please all small connoisseurs. J. B. Lippincott publishes this little book as well as an equally attractive companion volume "The Greyfur's Neighbors."

ADMIRERS OF Henry James will be interested in the publication this week by Charles Scribner's Sons of two of his uncompleted novels, "The Ivory Tower" and "The Sense of the Past." The former, a story of Newport, was laid aside with the outbreak of the war because its author could no longer work upon fiction supposed to represent contemporary or recent life. The latter, begun several years before his death and abandoned for accidental reasons, Mr. James resumed in the first winter of the war hoping that he might be able to work upon a story of remote and phantasmal life. Of special interest is the inclusion in the two volumes of preliminary notes which it was Mr. James' custom to prepare before beginning a novel to test and explore the possibilities of the idea which he had in mind.

THE DEMAND for the Modern Library, Boni & Liveright's series of popularly priced and attractively bound reprints, has been so great as to overtax the capacity of the small bindery with which the firm had contracted and to cause dealers some delay. The company has now placed its business in the hands of another firm and assures the trade that orders will be shipped promptly. The firm is emphasizing three special sets, selected from their lists, as especially appropriate Christmas gifts for soldiers or civilians: "Great Modern Short Stories" including De Maupassant, Strindberg, five volumes; "Great Modern Novels," including Wells, Butler, Chesterton, ten volumes; and "Great Modern Plays," including Maeterlinck and Ibsen, five volumes. Some of the new and significant titles in the Modern Library are Oscar Wilde's complete "Poems"; a translation of Flaubert's classic, "Madame Bovary"; Turgenev's "Fathers and Sons," which added the words "nihilist" and "nihilism" to the Russian language; Swinburne's "Poems"; and Chekhov's "Rothchild's Fiddle."

THE English Publishers' Circular thus begins its editorial preface to its annual Autumn Announcements Number:

"As we write—October 1st, 1917—the bugler of a big London military hospital has, in broad daylight, sounded the notice that a Hun air raid is coming on. Every night of this hunter's moon London has had to dine to the accompaniment of the music of our guns and the bombs of the Huns. It is all very exasperating, but it will not prevent the publication of our Autumn Announcement Number. In saying 'Good morning' to one of our staff—long past the military age—last Monday, we added a hope that he and his wife had not been much disturbed. He had only had a 15 or 20 lb. present from Germany come thru his roof, his top floor, his bed to bury itself in the floor beneath. He thought it hadn't done his cold any good, but beyond that and the natural resentment at having a particularly comfortable bed 'absolutely done for,' it seemed to be all in the day's work in these times. He had notified the anti-aircraft insurance people that he had a bill for them, ordered some temporary repairs to his roof, and was opening his mail in his office chair before nine o'clock. 'Where were we? Oh, Mrs. Malins and I were in the cellar—fortunately.' One of our American contemporaries in referring to our Export Number, remarked on the number of articles in it more or less referring to the war. Perhaps if his office window had been broken and his best bed bombed he would not be so surprised." The PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY was the "American Contemporary" in question: we quite appreciate the farce of the comment of our good friend, the Publishers' Circular.

Advertising copy should reach us Tuesday noon—earlier if proof is desired out-of-town. Forms close Thursday night.

Under the headings of "BOOKS WANTED" and "BOOKS FOR SALE" book-trade subscribers are given under their own names five nonpareil lines (exclusive of address) free advertising for specified books, not more than one title to the line, in any issue except special numbers, but not exceeding one hundred lines a year, a maximum of fifty lines under "Books Wanted" and fifty lines under "Books for Sale," and if over five lines are sent for either department in only one issue, or fifty lines for each department within the calendar year, the excess is at ten cents a line. Bills for this service will be rendered monthly. Objectionable books are excluded so far as they are noted.

In answering, please state edition, condition and price, including postage or express charges. Houses that will deal exclusively on a cash-on-delivery basis should put [Cash] after their firm name. The appearance of advertisements in this column, or elsewhere in the WEEKLY does not furnish a guarantee of credit. While it endeavors to safeguard its columns by withholding the privileges of advertising should occasion arise, booksellers should take usual precautions in extending credit.

"Books Wanted" must be designated by actual title not by "any."

Write your wants plainly, on one side of the sheet only. Illegible "wants" are ignored. The WEEKLY is not responsible for errors. Parties with whom there is no account must pay in advance.

Under "HELP WANTED" or for other small undisplayed advertisements, the charge is 10 cents a nonpareil line. No reduction for repeated matter. Count seven words to the line.

Reference List of New Publications

Recorded in OCTOBER, 1917

This Reference List includes and classifies all books entered in the annotated Weekly Record during the past month, together with additional titles not therein listed, covering law and medicine, many government documents, university publications, pamphlets, and books of limited character. All works are here entered under (1) author, in Clarendon type, anonymous books having Clarendon type for the first word; (2) title in Roman; (3) subject-heading in CAPS and SMALL CAPS; (4) name of series in Italics. Under subject entries asterisks () designate books previously entered in the Weekly Record, in most cases with descriptive annotation.*

A colon after initial designates the most usual given name, as: A: Augustus; B: Benjamin; C: Charles; D: David; E: Edward; F: Frederick; G: George; H: Henry; I: Isaac; J: John; L: Louis; N: Nicholas; P: Peter; R: Richard; S: Samuel; T: Thomas; W: William.

For books received sizes are given in caps, Q, O, D, etc.; for books not received sizes are given in Roman numerals, 4°, 8°, 12°, etc. Prices are added except when not supplied by publisher or obtainable only on specific request. Where not specified the binding is cloth.

Those desiring to learn the entire publishing output of the month in any one field should look under one of the following MAIN HEADINGS:

PHILOSOPHY	MEDICINE	LITERATURE
RELIGION AND THEOLOGY	AGRICULTURE	POETRY
SOCIOLOGY	HOUSEHOLD ECONOMICS	DRAMA
LAW	BUSINESS	FICTION
EDUCATION	ENGINEERING, TECHNOLOGY	BIOGRAPHY
PHILOLOGY	FINE ARTS	GEOGRAPHY AND TRAVEL
SCIENCE	GAMES, SPORTS, AMUSEMENTS	HISTORY

Besides the titles listed under each of these headings cross reference is made from each to a limited number of cognate headings which collectively give all the new publications of the month in the given subject or group of subjects.

Inquirers looking for books on a specific topic should look under the general subject to which that topic belongs, i. e., GEOLOGY rather than SILURIAN PERIOD; MATHEMATICS rather than CALCULUS; ECONOMICS rather than WAGES. Books regarding specific Religious denominations, countries and persons, however, should still be sought for under their individual names.
